NO CONCERT TICKETS NEEDED

(Long Island, Sat. Dec. 22, 2007) Hannah Montana fans craving souvenir concert merchandise will have a very rare opportunity on Wednesday, December 26, 2007 from 1:00 pm until 7:00 pm to purchase their souvenirs IN ADVANCE of the concert when SMG, operators of Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum, opens the arena's Expo Center to sell concert merchandise a day earlier than the back-to-back sold out concerts on December 27 and 28. No tickets are required for this special advance merchandise sale.

This marks the first time in the history of Nassau Coliseum that concert merchandise will go on sale before the day of the show and also be available to fans without event tickets. This advance merchandise on-sale is designed to accommodate all those who want to purchase their souvenirs in advance to reduce line waiting during the concerts. This unprecedented occasion also allows fans who were unable to secure tickets to the concert an opportunity to own a memento of the hottest touring artists of the year.

A complete line of concert merchandise, including T-shirts, posters, programs and light sticks from Hannah Montana, Miley Cyrus and Jonas Brothers, will be available during this special limited time offer. The special merchandise pre-sale will accept cash and major credit cards. All sales will be final.

Nassau Coliseum will begin charging the $7 per car parking fee at 5:00 pm on Wednesday, December 26, due to the NY Islanders hockey game that night. Guests not staying for the hockey game will receive a refund at the parking booth upon exit from Nassau Coliseum. It is important that all drivers keep their parking receipt.
